

Motto! Koori no Mamono no Monogatari

Suguru Shikô Artbook

This artbook was published along-side Koori volume 16. In addition to the art, it contains character profiles, author commentaries, an interview, and finally a new Koori short story. Keep in mind that all the information is from mid-series (v16). We've only partially translated it, focusing on the Koori-related parts.

Thanks a lot

What are you doing, everyone?
(Is this a letter?) Thanks for putting up this demon that-was-
(can I call it that?)

I was able to put out this book thanks to everyone who's nice enough to read my often-drunken manga () Still! That is Sengoku!

(I forgot to introduce myself) It makes me so inexplicably happy that fans have fallen in love with the characters I created. Haha :)

Yeah, I'm happy now

As happy as can be~
...oh, that's right! I'm going to take this happy energy and work away

Yeah, I'm not much of a talker, but I'll keep drawing manga

I hope you get at least a little gratified when you read them. Maybe it's said too often, but thank you again and again I'll keep drawing, so please do keep on reading if you want to :)

Well then, I hope you all have a good day!

(Please don't buy manga.)

See you the next time

Color Works Commentary

● ● ● Writer's Introduction from Sugiura Shihō

Sugravite is about the color of straw.

We learn lots of things, including events around when she drew them!

Dear Mr. and Mrs. (insert last name). All I remember is having fun going "hunting". It is appropriate when I went hunting when I was a kid. And that, that creates the right really hunting like a normal tree.

I published your article with my best recommendations to the Marketing Institute. But as the article is suddenly disappearing in ghosts, where will I find it? I am sure of a great article and I do not know where.

Picture 19
A young man observed. The background and surrounding details are minimal, but it is detailed.

"Chris, I'll probably never walk outside."
Then there'd be a silence.
"And I probably won't eat food."
"Huh?" I asked.

I wanted to try drawing something more...
mature.
I think it's difficult to draw a girl without making her look stuck-up,
but I tried to make her
natural.
"I'm
so high up."

For

but then, I try to draw them
more...
mature.
(and it seems to work.)
But then there's still, and of course they don't have expressions.
I try to do this drawing (hard).

I'd just graduated from a high school.
I had a sister.
I was afraid of independence or responsibility.
I
wasn't sure.

The actress is in her background
and then another girl is in the foreground.
I
had planned for the upper right corner
to be a mirror,
but I didn't.
I
planned
it out well.

decided to help a friend and I had published over him without distance with slightly old style. I resisted.
In
the chapter 41
of the last story and.
Yeah.

They're all looking at something different.
It's a moment.

▲ The soft-spoken Ishuca caught Shuu's attention. And then he says 'well done', an expression of Shuu's gratitude. There is no one who can beat Ishuca when it comes to the like [Intruder character].

▲ Ishuca realized he was wrong to scare Shuu by offering him some tea. In his judgment, Ishuca was a generalization of the rest of his own life.

■ ■ ■ WORDS FROM THE AUTHOR ■ ■ ■

In the beginning stages of the work, I had the idea, 'I want to draw Shuu living on misleading him.' I thought that said no character is not going to be completely good. Someone who does things unwillingly, but is probably a very innocent person. We still have the 'things' in common with Ishuca and Shuu's using the information from a feeling of belonging or a sense like the taste of home. There's something like the surface and that's why I thought Shuu's like that person. Ishuca is given to Shuu with whom he is related to. I think that right away, from the first reading you feel all that love and sensitivity you never pay about. That's it that's so striking, I think.

Ishuca Lake Sierra Vise Ell

(Pro-File) Main character. Boy without any mothers. When he knew his death was approaching, he looked for a place to die and went to a castle to the west. There he was shot and his dear blood, he died. But through the power of the deer, passed that blood with no real reward. Afterwards he touched blood to drown with a heart of power and the power of being compassionate of others. Thus passed life as indicated from him.

■■■ WORD FROM THE AUTHOR ■■■
Gloria Amico appeared first, as usual in her position, but strangely. I feel like I should kind of apologize for making her a sorceress and damned (well that's how I remember) about things, and even though it's not related to the grandfather, I can't help in the writing image of like old friends and family.

[Profile] Most of the northern people, Descendants of High priest Uzgel Pao, a certain personality and as the church taught, he stood against the demons. But then he met Blood and learned that demons with hearts exist and he changed his views.

→ He observed Blood and those around. I can hear the silent voices... (sighs)

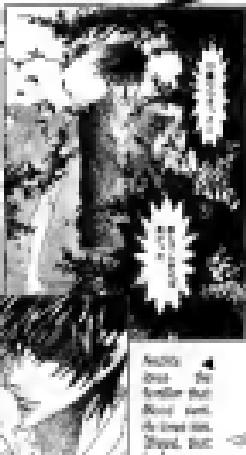

▲ In order to protect Blood from the people, Sellyhi Sheenz has to be the example and show in her respect to her signature. Meaning a demon with a heart changes the very way that Sellyhi feels.

ME WORDS FROM THE AUTHOR ■

His first appearance was under the beginning, but it was in a different form, so I had to make do. Some mistakes, and other people can start saying so that's how we started out. The "Black spider" was originally the mask used (that's because he's a spider...) (Is that odd?) I'm sorry, that's all there is to it.

水の魔物の物語 のできるまで

水の魔物の物語の大きな魅力の一つでもある美しい画面。その秘密にぐっと迫ります！

●杉浦先生の カラーの書き方●

色彩の描き方解説 その1 トレイの上に水をこぼした。その水の色をどのように表現するか？

上記でできたトレイ(トレイ2)を、絵筆をぬった面を下に向けたカラー用の紙(先生の場合はカラーケント)に重ね、上からイラストをなぞると、イラストが浮き出す(先生は手でこぼした時に水色を描くので、この作画が必要なのだ)。この後はベンズ入れはず、リキテックスという油絵を使って着色。うずく水に泡いだ絵の具を何度も重ね重ねする事に止って、絵画の済みのある、美しいカラーが生まれます。◎

SUGIURA SHIHO

String interview with Sugiyura about the works he, the art of "Koen no Mono gafu"! She reveals the title details, production stories, and secret character stories. ■ Sugiyura Shiho, born Jan. 20, 1962, died in 2014 with "Koen no Mono ga...

In your own words, how would you describe Koen no Mono gafu's characters?" (not Koen no Mono gafu) By his looks?"

Sugiyura. When I checked the character relationship chart in the book, I had to hold myself back (laughs). Or as I thought... but I can't express it in the hard for me to put in words. First off, Asahita is influenced by Koen's looks. And now Koen is influenced by what's on the inside, what would you call that? "What you say has 'influence' with her?"

Sugiyura. But is that a good way to put it? I answered (laughs) I don't think it's the same thing, maybe more like admiration? ■

Then who yourself? Well you like Koen, but who is it that you feel admiration about?"

Sugiyura. Well he isn't pushy. He's not some helpless human. But even though he's helpless, he doesn't meddle things. Also, because he gets left out a lot (laughs).

Tell me about the female characters. I was surprised that the old man has four. Both seem a bit... caring. Does he have his?"

Sugiyura. No, doesn't he left the temple, but he considers himself part of the temple even now... or where the vessel it was going for (laughs).

So the temple priests are required to show their faces?"

Sugiyura. Yes, they're required to... that said, Koen takes it very seriously (laughs).

What about Saito?"

Sugiyura. Saito takes it seriously too (laughs). I wanted to have Saito in the manga, but then when I made the prioritized list, it became easy to think, "This because and the others" (laughs). It did make me a little uncomfortable...

So you don't have them in other manga?"

Sugiyura. Oh, I can't look for them, the bodies. (laughs) But I do like them.

"Koen... is an animal with blood (laughs)."

Which characters are popular among the readers?"

Sugiyura. Koen, Asahita, Koen and Asahita (laughs). Did you have results for the characters both in popularity?

Sugiyura. I don't. I don't really think about it much along like, "Foreigners look, race, go little do blood hair" things with personalities when I first drew the story. I kept chapter 1 simple to build the plot.

For something that started simple, it really has turned into a long story.

Sugiyura. I wasn't thinking about anything when I drew chapter 1, but afterwards, I thought that Asahita really is an awful character. "I have to be the bad part"! I do like stories where the characters are influenced by others and change over the course of the story.

You mean character growth?"

Sugiyura. Yes, I decided to make a story like that, smart turnabout type of story.

Do any of the characters talk after you?"

Sugiyura. All of them do, in some way. Oh, except Saito (laughs). I'm basically the only one of the characters. Who likes blood or not?"

Sugiyura. They're the same height. It's me. It feels strange to line them up and look, while shorter, or I had to write down hand numbers for their heights. I'd want to make them equal.

What happens if you include Saito and Asahita?"

Sugiyura. It'd be twice, then blood and will then Asahita's height is a tad shorter - but the others are similar.

For instance, Asahita has some personality here. Do the characters get backhanded?"

Sugiyura. Yes. Periodically ones.

"During 'Koen' production, I had a hard time of finding characters to play Koen, Asahita, and the others. But then I thought that Asahita 'had' a pipe. So I just incorporated an element to Asahita's design that Asahita will be a cool person in his personality. It resulted in Asahita's character."

Start reading here!
We've passed the halfway point of "Koen no Mono ga...

point of "Koen no Mono ga..."
nd Mono ga..."
The story has finally entered the final arc. Koen has appeared, and the North down Asahita appeared. Has everything gone according to plan up until now?"

Sugiyura. The plan was for Asahita to die in the beginning back around when I was drawing volume 6. I had Koen and Asahita invited, but I was having problems with how to introduce Asahita (laughs) sorry, but I thought to myself, how about I have him be Koen's assistant? Well I was thinking on the story, it occurred to me that Asahita would be a bad idea, so I changed it. Aside from Asahita, the rest is going as I planned it.

Has you planned the story of "Koen no Mono no Mono no Mono no Mono" yet? (laughs) Call it "Koen"! And will the will? How far into the final arc are we?"

Sugiyura. I have planned it out. We're drawing close to the climax we've passed the halfway point.

When did you first start thinking of the story for "Koen"?"

Sugiyura. I had the idea in high school.

"Koen" chapter one was originally a sketch, right? When it came out, were you thinking of continuing it?"

Sugiyura. After I drew chapter one and the idea just came pouring out, I did like the manga, so it bugged me. What should I do with all these ideas? (laughs) I was so lucky when they asked if I could continue it by the time the first volume was printed, I had enough ideas of plots that story wouldn't

Suguru Goto Interview

Since I was influenced to believe that these stories are strange, you'll see them appear in my manga too.
In this interview how are always the story not your drawing style?

Suguru: Oh I think they did influence how I drew, too! [laughs] There was a time I also read works by Akio Yamada and Shoko Nakamura.

What does do you like? Does "Honey" has any background music?

Suguru: I like rock and anime songs, for one that also always had Beetles and Gitaru Yuki.

When you do something do you stick with it, or are you the type to flip them from to things?

Suguru: I'm not the type to say "I love it" about anything, but I do keep things for a while.

When I do a storyboards, the what rough sketches are erased.

Have added the Real stars are "Koichi Hanai" or "Hasegawa" Were you influenced to use the name like for an art?

Suguru: The title always to something

You have the "Predators"?

Suguru: Yes. If you read on, you'll understand the title's meaning. You'll have to wait for it.

Right now in "Honey", you have different plots for West and West. East Asia, the northern stories, and Tokyo, the red light district, and the temple people.

Suguru: Yes.

Many places make Frankensteins but using documents is certainly interesting but they don't get started at?

Suguru: They do. Drawing the storyboards can be extremely difficult, but I've got a chart [laughs].

I chart? You does that out?

Suguru: I can't just draw out the storyboards on a blank page. I make a timeline of the character's actions with time on the Y axis and the character groups on the X axis. whenever I think on the story, I imagine each respective group and think of what they should do next, given where they are now. Then I integrate it into the chart.

Suguru: I did in the mountains [laughs]. The word of "Mamoru" is like in European country-side, but since the shape of the mountains is Hasegawa, I was like, "what should I do now?" [laughs] I think the folks from Hasegawa would understand.

It like to ask about your family. You heard you're siblings are close.

Suguru: We are are [laughs]. You know older brother and sister. I found out of da brother together. What do you generally eat?

Suguru: These days it's the new Rita. Also old pop artists. The Shingugetsu. My sister sings "Honey me" this like she's compelled to sing it [laughs] country, too.

Do you draw close to their "Color Uniform" too?

Suguru: We do [laughs]. Do our siblings eat our noses? Do they eat our food?

Suguru: My brother will. Looking back on it, wouldn't it have been better to make Hasegawa a girl? To which his wife replied, "But then it'd make odd a pedophile" [laughs].

What was your intention to merge?

Suguru: Probably "Stamp". My brother bought it and I'd read it. I thought "High School Divergence" was interesting so I collected the volume. What authors and who have influenced that on this one?

Suguru: I think I've mentioned it all before a couple times. Oh, but "Shônen King" is one.

Suguru: I read all the volume, and it was the first manga range I read so I can't think, "This is what a shônen manga is like" ... though I have the Reading 2 over 400 [laughs]. I think I realized that like, in my own way, it influenced how I develop stories when I'm thinking up a story, there will be events that set up the ending, but [I] also subconsciously add in events that forshadow it.

It's probably "Stamp" influenced. There must be many that are using it Suguru's story too?

Do you like "Inu?"

Suguru: I do.

In Japanese?

Suguru: That's not it. I only drawing Him. You have to draw Him carefully. More really getting to the root of those here.

Suguru: Deeper and deeper, till by it, since I like being slowly pressured, in that way it's fun. Though it's going pretty bad to say that [laughs].

In your current or known character usage, who and you create a "humble" style?

Suguru: You'll understand soon enough if the someone who's already been introduced. Let me ask about Goto. What kind of person is? His personality?

Suguru: He's straightforward. Also, and I don't mean this in a weird way, but he's the type who's happy being alone. There's no one inappropriate to him.

And the blood too?

Suguru: AA, maybe. So who's Goto's personality and blood here?

Suguru: No blood type. As personality!

There are lots of characters in "Honey". Do you like reading manga with a large cast?

Suguru: I like manga where the main characters and supporting characters each have their own place going on. And because I like reading those stories, I draw and like that too.

For a sketch never with a large cast under?

Suguru: It's not [laughs]. I like manga like that, so I decided to work hard to get there.

I watched to use the background of Hasegawa as a backdrop in my paintings, so neither what

From your previous. How are you brought up? Family about? Or relatives?

Suguru: Both. I'd play with my friends outside and play by myself at home.

Most are the one like around you home?

Suguru: There were farms and fields and such. It was like a-3 houses, then farms, then another houses.

Did you put the knowledge that Suguru a year away?

so the readers can understand. It's tough [for me]. I think, "that seems hard", but then I think, "let's give it a try". I think that in order to make it easy to understand, I have to choose simple dialogue.

In regard to the story you mentioned that you'd like more when you good things happen. You want to draw happy stories. What do you mean by that?

Suguru: I'm really not a fan of people whose only intent is their looks. Even if someone is beautiful, you can't pick them based on just that, beauty is entertainment, so I always think I have to draw a fun story. But if I do that, it won't have any depth. That is, I feel like it'd be drawing on the surface of substance. I like people with substance, so when I draw them, I figure it'd be nice for them to also be beautiful. As far as protagonists go, I don't like ones who can get away with anything. And when they get a happy ending by default, I end up like, "just some effort man!"

So you want to focus not just their outward appearance, but also their inside. Does that mean the one you want to depict that best for a new character?

Suguru: I used to be blood, but now I'm on Icehouse. Next is Amore. I tried to depict what was going on inside blood right after the "Violentia" arc.

You mentioned character growth before. Most really has gone over the beginning (so far)!

Suguru: True. In the beginning, I wanted to draw a story where blood changed. Then I thought the not about drawing change. It's "drawing a person". Now, as I work to "draw a person", I've started from blood to Icehouse.

In Icehouse character profiles are different to "right". More diverse.

Suguru: For instance, character A changes because of character B. That's not yet a cycle but if A, who changed from something good that B did now causes B to change, then it's a cycle. Among the pairings in "Violentia", I like it when character A changes because of B but, I want to draw it where A, who is now changed, also causes B to change.

Would you say that Violentia changed, and that the focus is always because of that?

Suguru: Yes.

You long does it take you to do the panels?

Suguru: From page 1 day. If I push through just drawing? About 2 days.

Do you also lose when there's a deadline sometimes?

Suguru: I mostly have time to sleep these days.

The characters do things ... I want to draw the "sophomore" resulting from the events.

Is it like building the story, or there anything you focus on?

Suguru: Portraying easy to understand emotions.

How to understand? Care to elaborate?

Suguru: I want to draw it out in such a way that readers can grasp the emotions of all the characters just by reading of someone else to tell you by some character did something, you'll be able to explain it. If the characters can be understood without digging deeply, then you can describe them straightforwardly.

What about character like冰?

Suguru: He probably seems hard to understand to readers who have only seen the story so far. That said, I couldn't draw unless I know the reason, so I'd draw it with the repeated issue. For characters like Amore that are difficult to portray, I can understand things or failing to get the point across I'd like to portray them in an easy to understand way that gets across the emotions I want to convey.

The eastern characters in Violentia are all okay. But not beautiful. More you determined to tell a story like that?

Suguru: Yes. I can't simply translate readers with negative emotions and feelings out of the plot. I only draw after considering how much negativity I want to include and what the natural fallout from it will be.

Right now there are new characters with through really rough lines.

Suguru: I want to draw these emotions. I like drawing how the heart is affected more than drawing the events themselves. I want to depict the emotion resulting from the events.

That sounds like something. So you created the chart to tell it all down because the characters seemed important to it?

Suguru: Yes (laughs). If a artist draw things strictly in order, I get doubts about whether it will turn out nice and I feel like I've dug my own grave.

Have you ever wanted to tell so many when the storyboard got here?

Suguru: Very much. But I'm the type to work myself into a corner so easier when else I have going on. I'm always like, "what should I do about that thing? I can't seem to think of anything good". I complete things in batches. Periodically.

If you already have a chart, you must have the plot outline decided right?

Suguru: Not. I'm still considering maybe something's missing?

The series is currently being worked. What's your health schedule?

Suguru: One week for the storyboard, and a day to draw.

How much do you draw in a day?

Suguru: I try to sketch out 20 pages.

A: As much as I want to draw that in detail, I don't want to. When I expressed that concern to my editor — the one that reported to me — he just told me to draw it.

When you draw what are you could about?

Suguru: The size of the frame. I think about balance between the left and right sides of the page and where the eye falls, so the characters appear once in a large frame and the order of the speech bubbles makes sense. Though I do draw much faster now than before.

See

Suguksu: There will be a Japanese person. And I want foreigners, too. The setting will be cities, and another country and, elsewhere. I want there to be people from a parallel universe. I'll even in modern day with school kids. And that's pretty all it is!

Suguksu: Some territory, since there's going to depict degenerates. I don't think I could draw a "normal" school story anymore (laughs) I've recently decided on the characters, too.

It sounds like you have a lot figured out. Do you have a lot planned out, or really taking it one to it?

Suguksu: Well, I'm not the type to stick to ideas. You see, if I do manga like for manga, so I want to create fun manga. I haven't really ruled out my first manga, but it'll probably work out. I believe that as long as I have that mindset, it'll be a lot better in drawing it.

Even if I haven't figured out anything else yet, every time I read a manga and visualized something beautiful, or nice, or experienced something new or unknown, it makes me feel like I can write a new story. As you know the feeling of "Person, please let me know if you come to a decision."

Suguksu: I want to finish the story without any regrets. I have a bad habit of holding back, so I want to avoid that.

Please allow here a moment for you to...

Suguksu: I'm going to work. Here I don't have the time to do much outside of creating my manga, so I really am sorry that I can't reply to your letters. But I drew... and it's like the manga I drew is the only gift I can give you now. I'm going to work hard.

■ Right now, Suguksu is the process of drawing. Below says that Suguksu has enough of sketching. Now the good, when drawing with charcoal "pings".

Q: There something in there you particularly wanted to draw?

Suguksu: Blood and red seems to like drawing that sort of stuff (laughs). Two equals, even if they are in different places,

I really do like that a lot. I'm not a fan of color, but I like the colors in color. What part in particular do you like in these pages?

Suguksu: The painting done before the drama. For two-page spreads, I like the color pages, but they're a waste of time. Layering the colors takes as much time (laughs). I think the colors, we are beautiful, indeed very carefully.

Suguksu: I want to do better drawing the small details. I'm not there yet. Of the colors reflected in the artwork, which is your favorite?

Suguksu: For some reason, I like the one where Blood is sprawled out on the tree branch. I've been doing like he does in that picture. I feel the Blood's face afterwards is cleaner than it should be.

Whatever I experience Something new, I feel like I can write a new story

After we finish the story, do you want to draw a supplemental volume?

Suguksu: I want to draw about when Blood came to the north and when it's a story about Blood and me. And beyond that, I really want to draw a story about the old man in his younger days (laughs). If I can draw more, I'd like to draw one about Adi's younger days, when he was human. I'd like that, but I don't know how many pages it'd take, and I don't think I could fit it in one volume (laughs). So what now? Not just one supplement volume, but two, or three? It can't start doing that.

Is there a story you want to draw after "Tales"?" If you already decided the set by all characters, are there any traits you could share?

Most work I'm doing is when nothing really seems real.

Suguksu: Making their expressions understand and conveying their emotions.

What kind of facial expression do you particularly enjoy drawing?

Suguksu: I enjoy drawing them all. If you convey an emotion powerfully through the characters expression, it doesn't matter to me if they're laughing or crying.

This is your logical continuation, or rather your final continuation. Do you feel any change different with "Tales"?

Suguksu: I think about it differently now about drawing what's inside rather than just appearance. In the beginning, I didn't want to draw between

Suguksu: At the start, I didn't think very hard about the characters, when I drew the first chapter. I started to think, "Well, I think what's going to do, isn't exactly a good quality. As I kept thinking about it, I thought it's stranger and stranger because of that. I thought, I have to draw what's inside this character, his emotions. My thoughts about drawing what's inside a person changed. I decided on what's inside (laughs) and then turned toward creating the story.

Later, up until around a "valuable" sort, it felt like I was drawing based on instinct, my desire to draw emotions as readers would grasp what they change over the drama over, but because my abilities weren't growing, I had no choice but to rely on instinct, too. I draw with clear direction and organization.

I wish I could spend more time on colors

Let me ask about the colors. In the five pages you drew for it, you drew Blood and Adi, Blood and Adi, and other scenes. How did you decide on the colors?

Suguksu: I've done lots of colors of Blood and Blood, so I try to often I want to draw something else. And when dealing with Adi, I had to give him something extra (laughs).

You did the five pages for that?

Suguksu: It looks like the tracks I painted it, as I painted
